Question 10 Answer

I grew up in the heartland of Florida on Butler Oaks Farm, where a firearm was a tool as essential as a tractor: for protecting livestock, for putting food on the table, for keeping my family safe. The Second Amendment isn't about politicians granting us a privilege. It's a right, protected by our Constitution, that every law-abiding citizen is entitled to, and one that shall not be infringed. As a 9th-generation Floridian, a husband, a father, and a candidate for Congress, I will always defend the right of law-abiding citizens to keep and bear arms. Not the other way around.
